

TRING PARK PUPILS STAR IN LONDON CABARET

Students from local school, Tring Park School for the Performing Arts will be dancing their hearts out tonight as they take part in a spectacular cabaret performance at The Museum of London (Thursday 5 March, 6pm-9pm).

Fresh from their performances in Gershwin's Crazy For You at London's Shaw Theatre at Kings Cross, Musical Theatre students Lawrence Libor, Jenny Thorogood, Flo Smith and Tegan Edwards will accompany Musical Director Simon Sharp to present an eclectic cabaret showcasing music drawn from the contemporary theatre and modern songbook collectives.

The performance, which is free of charge, is part of the Latest season of after-hours art and culture in London. Encouraging people to enjoy a twilight cultural experience, eleven of the capital's top art's venues will be keeping their doors open to sample such performances as the cabaret by the Tring Park students.

Principal of Tring Park School for the Performing Arts, Stefan Anderson comments, "We are delighted that our Musical Theatre students have been selected to appear in this special cabaret performance. It shows the fantastic talent and exceptional ability which our students have here at Tring Park and it's great to be able to show this to audiences far and wide. If you happen to be in London tonight and fancy a good night out, you will not be disappointed!"
