DANCERS impressed special visitors during the official launch of a school's new branding.

Tring Arts Educational School has been renamed Tring Park School for the Performing Arts and is also undergoing a range of other developments.

The Lord Lieutenant of Herts Lady Dione Verulam, the High Sheriff of Herts Paul Cherry, the Deputy Lieutenant of Herts Councillor Derek Townsend, South West Herts MP David Gauke, the Mayor of Tring Councillor Mike James and Mayor of Dacorum Councillor Carol Green turned out for the event on Friday, January 23.

They got to meet some of the school's talented students and watched them perform.

School principal Stefan Anderson said: "After the recent re-naming of the school, we are entering the next stage of our development which includes exciting new plans to enhance the school's facilities and keep us at the forefront of our field."

The school's sixth form will perform Gershwin's Crazy
